

Web Development

Tuesday, 24 July 2007

Web presence maybe an extension of your traditional brick-and-mortar business into the click-and-mortar era, or a vision of delivering your products and services to the customers through an entirely new business model. Companies that work with Dualvision enjoy a well thought out Internet strategy, not simply a website design. Those that work with us enjoy a higher probability of success based on research, business strategies, trends, experiences and proven plans and ideas. We offer complete corporate web solutions, not simply website design

Dualvision delivers professional website design and web development services including high-class custom web programming from a simple web page to the complex solutions, e-commerce solutions, CMS (Content Management Systems) and search engine friendly website design - SEO (Search Engine Optimization).

Web presence maybe an extension of your traditional brick-and-mortar business into the click-and-mortar era, or a vision of delivering your products and services to the customers through an entirely new business model. Companies that work with Dualvision enjoy a well thought out Internet strategy, not simply a website design. Those that work with us enjoy a higher probability of success based on research, business strategies, trends, experiences and proven plans and ideas.

Web specialists at DualVision are equipped to address all strategic and technological issues, including development of web & content strategies, corporate identity & branding, e-Commerce solutions and multi-tiered web-based applications. Our developers and graphic designers work in synergy, catering not only for the look-and-feel, but the total user experience, from the human interface to addressing user requirements and meeting application objectives. Constant research and development at DualVision means that we are always discovering new programming techniques to apply to your projects so as to ensure that they remain competitive. We use the latest technologies available today. If you require new custom application creation, DualVision provides expert technical design and development in all areas of application development. Our expertise includes large network applications, Internet applications, database application development for the Web, critical to major e-business applications in areas from content management to commerce transactions. Our approach leverages the advantages of widely used packaged solutions by coupling them with fully tailored implementation to meet widely varying client needs.

Our Application Development and Integration services involve our taking ownership and responsibility for delivery of a client's entire application or a portion of it, thereby allowing the client to focus on his or her core business. Our approach is to understand the client's business need or problem, envision a solution, analyze the requirements, design, build and test the application, smoothly implement it in the client's environment, provide user training, and finally monitor and tune the application.

Our consultants are recognized experts who have extensive experience and knowledge in their fields. Our seasoned consultants and engineers can quickly turn your vision from concept to reality. All aspects of project undertaking are covered including strategy, choice of technology, desired user experience, and delivery management. Ask about our Free no obligation analysis!

A Dualvision consultant would enjoy the opportunity to answer any questions and provide you with information to make a comfortable and informed decision about how the Internet fits into your business. CONTACT DUALVISION NOW!