DualVision is based in greater Washington, DC area. We are the proof of the decreasing importance of geography and we have had clients range from coast to coast and in several countries. DualVision (formerly Edgeutech) was founded in 1999 in order to provide quality design services and professional web based solutions at a reasonable price with maximum satisfaction for small businesses.

Our expertise ranges from operating systems and databases to protocols and packaged software to desktops and mobile devices. However, our core expertise lies in leveraging Java and XML technologies to work with a wide variety of popular standards and technologies. Our consultants are recognized experts who have extensive experiences and knowledge in their fields. We provide service in the areas of custom application development, professional web design, e-business solutions, system integration and migration, search engine optimization, online marketing, web hosting and internet related investments. Please see our services section for more details. Our Mission Our Mission is to help your business or organization establish a compelling presence on the Internet through excellence of design, ease of navigation, and efficiency of code. DualVision provides the connection between businesses and the Internet. We provide a full-service solution and all necessary expertise to develop a successful Internet presence for our clients. We provide an environment that encourages and rewards creativity and diligence in performance. To help us most rapidly deliver a solution tailored to your unique business and technical requirements, we have identified the key application groups, technologies, and processes critical for e-business implementations. The result is a dynamic e-business technology map that provides a blueprint for developing and integrating the best solutions for your organization across a range of needs, from information sourcing to delivery, commerce transactions to user profile analysis, and security to infrastructure. We help you quickly gain the benefit of our e-business expertise by continually reviewing and updating this technology map based on emerging trends, market demand, and our clients' experience. And we ensure that we will continue to most effectively meet your needs for expert resources by using this map as our guide for technology training and alliance formation with leading and emerging Internet application companies. We hold ourselves and our employees to the highest standards of customer service and quality of work through proven methods.

Why Dualvision? Our belief in customer satisfaction, respect, and fair treatment has been the basic factor for our successful growth (largely by word of mouth and direct witnessing of our creations) and the loyalty of many of our clients. Our Mission is to help your business or organization establish a compelling presence on the Internet through excellence of design, ease of navigation, and efficiency of code. We see ourselves as part of your team and work hard to provide your business with the Internet presence it needs and deserves. We will do all that we can to help your organization establish a well designed/well deserved presence on the Internet. DualVision is promising you the cutting edge technology at an affordable price with maximum satisfaction.
